WATER - WHAT NOW?

That St. Marys and Cornwall will suffer a prolonged period of water rationing now seems inevitable. At this point there is not much satisfaction in pointing the blame at anyone and chastising them for a grim situation. Undoubtedly, the main cause for a shortage of water is simply the lack of worthwhile rains.

However, this paper does wish to highlight several facts that in recent months have shown considerable lack of fore-sight by the Fingal Council, and especially Councillors responsible for the St. Marys Ward.

For instance, why was not strict rationing introduced sooner when there was still a reasonable amount of water in storage? It is obvious that during a dry period, the driest time will be during the summer months, yet except for a few half-hearted appeals in the form of shop notices reminding residents that water was scarce, no attempt at definite rationing was proclaimed. Some pipes around the St. Marys area have been leaking, some residents assure us, for as long as they can remember, also, the sight of council workers eventually fixing a leak by uncoupling the nearest joint and letting about two days of water run down the drain, do nothing to enhance the image of the council's ability to cope. They do not in fact seem to know where stop taps are located, or worse, to even have a plan to refer to.

Now two towns are faced with the prospect of collecting their water from roadside tanks. We wonder on what basis the water will be issued? We also wonder what considerations are to be made for the old, the invalid and those without conveyance? With inadequate toilet and bathing facilities the already worrying number of gastro-enteritis cases could become disastrous. In almost every recent issue, this paper has suggested the situation to be critical, and little, if any, notice was taken. It is probably too late now to alleviate the present situation to any extent, only rain will do that, but in future crises it is suggested to the council that if they want to close their barn door before the horse bolts, it will be first necessary to know exactly where their barn is.

"OH NO, JIM! I COULD NOT PART WITH MY LILY, NOT UNLESS I GET A BETTER OFFER."

TOUCHE'

A FARMER'S WIFE near St. Marys last week was complaining about the people who dump their old rubbish along the edges of country roads. She couldn't understand why they didn't just dump it at the council rubbish tip.

We can't understand them either. Perhaps the councillor who was seen throwing his rubbish over a back fence could tell her.

ANYONE NOTICING the sudden change in position of the sand-banks at Diana's Basin will be interested to know that it didn't happen because of the high wind we had. A certain Mary lost her Engagement Ring last Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. We shan't ask what she was doing in the sand banks, but by 7 o'clock the same evening, after a vigorous hunt with sieves and things the Ring was restored to the thankful girl.

LETTERS.

Dear Valerie Voyce

Sir,
 I am very perturbed at the cost of the new school Uniform, for both boys and girls, at the St. Marys District School.
 Why is this Uniform so expensive and why cannot Mothers (many of whom are good dress-makers) obtain both pattern and material? Surely it should be possible to buy both at school?
 If the local shopkeepers were able to sell the Uniform, many more people would buy them, as most people run accounts, and could buy then and pay for them later. The girl's new summer Uniform is badly fitting and an outrageous price for the amount of material. The finishing is practically nil.
 When parents can buy boy's shorts for under $2.00, they certainly do not feel inclined to pay $5.00, especially as one pair is not enough.
 I am concerned as to where the profit is going. If the School is making it, surely they should be content to make a little less and have more satisfied parents. If McKinlays are making it I suggest some other less greedy firm should be given the contract.

V. Bradbury,
Cornwall.

A V.I.P. VISITOR.

His Excellency the High Commissioner of Pakistan and Madam Malic with their son Peter, spent a relaxing two days at the Scanander Motel.
 His Excellency is on an official tour of Tasmania which ended in Hobart on Wednesday 14th.
 On the 15th the party departed on the Princess of Tasmania for their trip back to Canberra.
 While he was on the coast, His Excellency commented on the gracious people of Tasmania and praised their hospitality.
 His Excellency said he had had a wonderful time on the East Coast.

Dear Editor,
 Last edition of your paper, my letter was published in the Dear Valerie Voyce column. I wish to complain about Miss Voyce's attitude to my problem. I am indignant and certainly not helped by her so-called advice.
 I would be glad if you could assure me of her reprimand, but of course I would not like her to lose her job.

Loaded.

Dear Loaded,
 Take a "butchers" at Valerie Ed.

Dear Valerie Voyce,
 I am in trouble with my water. What should I do?
 W. W.

Dear W. W.,
 Without more details I can only suggest you contact your Councillor - or your Doctor.

HERITAGE CORNER

BUSHRANGERS

Bushranging began in Van Diemens Land almost with the first settlement. During the famines of the early years convicts were allowed to go into the bush and catch kangaroos for food. Some stayed out living on the country and such travellers and settlers as they could rob. These men became known as 'bushrangers', and during the first twenty years of the colony many more joined them.

One famous bushranger was Matthew Brady. Brady was a prisoner at Macquarie Harbour who, with others, escaped in an open boat in 1824. While they were seizing the boat the surgeon of the settlement, Dr. Garret, fell into their hands. They were going to flog him to give him a taste of the punishment he so often witnessed, but Brady prevented them because, when in hospital, the doctor had been kind to him. In November, 1825, they captured the town of Soroll, taking the military garrison by surprise and locking them in the Gool. Dr. Garrett who was at Soroll at the time hid in a barrel during the raid. For two years Brady's gang terrorised the countryside and the Brady's Lockouts in various parts of Tasmania are reminders of their activity. In 1826 Brady was captured by John Batman and taken to Hobart to be executed.

Martin Cash was practically the last of the Tasmanian bushrangers. In 1843 he made his historic escape from Port Arthur, with Kavanagh and John eluding both soldiers and dog guard and swimming across Norfolk Bay. For two years they roamed the country, their main headquarters being set up at Mount Dromedary. Cash was a kind of Robin Hood, robbing only the rich and being very courteous to women.

After capture Jones was hanged and Kavanagh died, but Cash was commuted to life imprisonment on Norfolk Island. When Norfolk Island Penal Settlement was abandoned he was returned to Port Arthur and was released for good behaviour shortly afterwards. He finally became a respectable farmer at Glenorchy and died in 1877. In his later years he wrote a book on his adventures.

FLAT FEET.

Every baby appears to have flat feet, although true flat feet deformity is rare in a baby.

The vast majority of "flat feet" in babies is simply the result of the fact that the concavity of the foot, the longitudinal arch, is filled up by a pad of fat; the baby has fat feet rather than flat feet! It is simply necessary to assure oneself that the baby's foot is perfectly supple with a normal range of movement; the normal appearance of the arch of the foot will show itself during early school years. A recent survey of London children of whom foot prints were made and studied, revealed that 97 per cent had this apparent appearance of flat feet at the age of 18 months but in children from 10 - 12 years this appearance had fallen to only 4 per cent.

Arch supports should never be prescribed for children. They are painful, prevent the natural easy movement of the feet and make the child foot conscious. They are relics of the days when the foot arches were regarded as something sacred. Special shoes are certainly not required for what is, in fact, perfectly normal anatomy.

Shoes are only needed when the baby starts to walk; before then they just prevent him crawling happily, and he needs no more than the protection of knitted or slipper socks. When testing a child's shoe, have him stand up since the foot lengthens in this position; ensure that there is about half-an-inch space between the big toe and the end of the shoe so that the toes can wiggle freely.

The back of the shoe should comfortably grip the heel and the sole should not be so rigid that movement will be inhibited. Owing to the risk of irradiation, x-ray machines are quite rightly disappearing from shoe shops. Most parents realise that feet grow with amazing rapidity and that shoes will have to be discarded and replaced frequently and with larger sizes. However, many parents seem to be unaware that socks, rather than shoes, require constant watching. Often one finds a child with well fitting shoes, but with socks that are far too small; these will press on growing toes and produce crowding or clawing.

DID YOU EVER THINK...Do you ever think about sex. I am sure you do, but I mean differences in sex. Human behaviour is determined by our biological endowment and to a very great extent our culture. What has this to do with differences in sex? Well culture affects your femininity or masculinity, (among other things.) You don't believe me...?

Then consider the ARAPESH; a New Guinea tribe. Both male and female members display behaviour that by our standards would be considered feminine. Men as well as women tend to be unaggressive, co-operative, mild and responsive. In courtship neither sex are aggressive and both men and women are regarded as helpless in the face of seduction!

Still not convinced, well think about the MANDUGUMOR, another N.G. tribe. In contrast to the wild mannered ARAPESH, both MANDUGUMOR men and women are characterised as masculine in behaviour. Both sexes are ruthless, aggressive individuals in whom tenderness and gentle behaviour are at an absolute minimum. Courtship is a violent, passionate affair with both men and women being equally aggressive.

And then there is another N.G. tribe who does have clearly defined roles for their two sexes, but the roles are reversed by our standards. The TCHAMBULI men are irresponsible and emotionally dependent, while the women are dominant, impersonal and business like. The woman playing male parts, are rather passive and aloof except in courtship where they are the initiators. - WOW.

Makes you wonder if you are only feminine because of social norms, or masculine because of the way the other blokes act, doesn't it?

THE RURAL FIRES ACT 1967.

The newly enacted Rural Fires Act of 1967 replaces the old Rural Fires Act, and became operative as from 1st. July, 1968.

It was drafted as the result of extensive enquiry after the tragic Southern Tasmanian fires of February 1967, and its main purpose is to co-ordinate as far as possible the control of rural fires by the use of available facilities and local knowledge of responsible persons.

Firstly, the Municipal Councils are now required to take some part in the administration of the requirements of the Act, the first requirement being to form a Municipal Fire Committee whose function is to advise or recommend to Council matters pertaining to Fire Danger Periods, the provision of fire fighting equipment, etc. Council in turn, make their recommendation to the Rural Fires Board.

The Fingal Municipal Fire Committee has been formed under the chairmanship of Mr. J. M. Brodribb, and several meetings have been held.

In addition to the State Fire Control Officer, there are a number of Regional Fire Control Officers appointed by the Board to the several declared regions of the State, and we are fortunate in the Fingal Municipality to have Mr. Russ. Livingstone, stationed at Launceston, as regional Fire Control Officer for the North East Region. His function is to assist with the formation and training of Rural Fire Brigades, and advise and assist the general functions of the various brigades and committees.

A Rural Fire Brigade has been formed in each of the town areas of the Municipality to control the surrounding districts.

The Act places on Brigade Officers certain responsibilities, and also provides them with certain authority for the carrying out of such responsibilities.

As the result of a recommendation by the Municipal Fire Committee, a Fire Danger Period for Fingal and other East Coast Municipalities was declared by the Board as from 23rd. December, 1968.

This means that while this Fire Danger period is in force, a permit must be obtained from the local Fire Permit Officer before proceeding to burn scrub or other vegetation.

There are also certain requirements for the use of outside incinerators, such as preventing the escape of burning material, and having a cleared area of five feet diameter around a drum type incinerator.

Fortunately, since the 23rd. December, cool and damp weather conditions have reduced the fire danger, but as the weather improves, so will the fire danger increase.

It is the hope of the Municipal Committee and all concerned with the administration of the new legislation, that all citizens will do their utmost to provide protection for their properties by reducing fire hazards, and possibly prevent or minimize serious damage and financial loss, or even loss of human life.

While there are severe penalties provided for failure to comply with the requirements of the new Act, all concerned with its administration will be happier if voluntary co-operation can eliminate the necessity to have offenders prosecuted.

FIRE PERMIT OFFICERS are:- FINGAL - Council Clerk; AVOCA - L. Foot; ROSSARDEN - K. R. Davey; MATHINNA - J. K. Guy; ST.MARYS - Gerald Aulich; SCAMANDER - D. Smith.
